THE WRECKING CREW: Rock 'n Roll's Best Kept Secret, by Kent Hartman (St. Martin's, 2010)

The truth is that most of the great groups from the 1960s and '70s (The Beach Boys, Simon and Garfunkel, The Mamas and The Papas, The Byrds, etc.) weren't playing on any of their albums. It was a group of studio musicians called The Wrecking Crew. This is the never-before-told story of their incredible studio sessions making over 500 of the most popular albums in rock 'n roll history.

SILENT LIES* and *DECEPTIVE INTENTIONS, by M.L. Malcolm (Harper Paperbacks, 2010)

Originally self published and selling over 5,000 copies with virtually no marketing push, these two epic historical novels take the reader from Budapest to Shanghai to New York during the turbulent years between the two world wars. Riding on intrigue, power, scandal, and of course, love, this is a page-turner in the truest sense of the word. www.SilentLies.com

"A sweeping saga reminiscent of Jeffrey Archer and Susan Howatch, Silent Lies is brilliantly researched and beautifully written. I could not put this book down." --Karen White, bestselling author of The Memory of Water
